

GenAI for Customer Segmentation and Insights Report

Yves Bourgeois

03/11/2025

I. Customer Segment Overview

The customers were segmented into the following categories:

- High Spenders: Customers who spent more than the 75th percentile of total spending. Count: 15.
- Frequent Buyers: Customers who made more purchases than the 75th percentile. Count: 15.
- Low-Engagement Customers: Customers with interactions below the 25th percentile. Count: 15.
- Occasional Buyers: Customers who made at least one purchase but are not frequent buyers. Count: 44.

Key customer segments were identified based on location and behavior:

- High-Spending Locations: Focus marketing efforts on these areas to maximize revenue.
- Frequent Buyers: Engage with loyalty programs or exclusive offers to retain them.
- Low-Engagement Customers: Use targeted campaigns to increase their interactions and purchases.
- Occasional Buyers: Offer incentives like discounts or bundles to encourage more frequent purchases.

II. Segment Analysis

The main patterns observed for high-engagement customers (those with interactions above the 75th percentile) are as follows:

- Amount Spent: High-engagement customers spend an average of $580, with a median of $550, indicating they are significant contributors to revenue.
- Purchases: They make an average of 7.33 purchases, with a median of 7 purchases, showing frequent buying behavior.
- Average Reviews: They leave an average of 3.9 reviews, with a median of 4 reviews, suggesting they are active in providing feedback.
- Returns: They have an average of 0.67 returns, with a median of 1 return, indicating a relatively low return rate.

These customers are highly valuable due to their frequent purchases, high spending, and active engagement. Let me know if you need further insights!

The key demographic trends within the frequent buyer segment are as follows:

- Austin, TX: 1 frequent buyer with an average spending of $480 and 40 interactions.
- Miami, FL: 3 frequent buyers with an average spending of $723.33 and 51.67 interactions.
- New York, NY: 2 frequent buyers with an average spending of $462.50 and 42.5 interactions.
- Orlando, FL: 1 frequent buyer with an average spending of $720 and 60 interactions.
- Phoenix, AZ: 2 frequent buyers with an average spending of $542.50 and 41 interactions.
- Portland, OR: 1 frequent buyer with an average spending of $640 and 50 interactions.
- Salt Lake City, UT: 1 frequent buyer with an average spending of $680 and 50 interactions.
- San Diego, CA: 1 frequent buyer with an average spending of $540 and 34 interactions.
- San Francisco, CA: 2 frequent buyers with an average spending of $520 and 42 interactions.
- Seattle, WA: 1 frequent buyer with an average spending of $680 and 60 interactions.

Frequent buyers are distributed across various locations, with Miami, FL, having the highest number of frequent buyers. These customers tend to have high interactions and significant spending. Let me know if you need further insights!

III. Opportunities and Challenges for each Segment

To increase engagement with low-engagement customers, the following opportunities can be explored:

1. Personalized Marketing Campaigns

- Use targeted email or SMS campaigns to offer personalized product recommendations based on their past purchases or browsing history.
- Highlight trending or popular products to spark interest.

2. Incentives and Discounts

- Offer exclusive discounts, coupons, or limited-time deals to encourage purchases.
- Provide loyalty points or rewards for interactions, such as leaving reviews or referring friends.

3. Engagement Through Gamification

- Introduce gamified elements like challenges, quizzes, or contests to make interactions more engaging.
- Reward customers for completing specific actions, such as visiting the website or interacting with social media posts.

4. Improved Communication

- Send reminders about abandoned carts or wishlist items.
- Share newsletters with engaging content, such as product tips, user stories, or upcoming events.

5. Enhanced Customer Support

- Reach out to low-engagement customers to understand their needs or concerns.
- Offer live chat or quick-response support to address any barriers to engagement.

Retaining high-spending customers can be challenging due to their high expectations and the competitive nature of the market. Here are some potential challenges:

1. High Expectations for Quality and Service

- High-spending customers often expect premium-quality products and exceptional customer service. Any lapse in quality or service can lead to dissatisfaction and loss of loyalty.

2. Price Sensitivity Despite High Spending

- Even though they spend more, high-spending customers may still be price-sensitive and attracted to competitors offering better deals or discounts.

3. Competition from Other Brands

- Competitors may actively target high-spending customers with exclusive offers, loyalty programs, or personalized experiences, making it harder to retain them.

4. Lack of Personalization

- High-spending customers often expect personalized experiences, such as tailored recommendations, exclusive offers, or VIP treatment. A lack of personalization can make them feel undervalued.

5. Product Fatigue

- If the product range is limited or lacks innovation, high-spending customers may lose interest over time and seek variety elsewhere.

IV. Recommendations for each Segment

Strategies to Overcome These Challenges:

- Deliver Consistent Quality: Ensure products and services meet or exceed expectations consistently.
- Offer Exclusive Benefits: Provide VIP programs, early access to new products, or personalized offers to make them feel valued.
- Build Strong Relationships: Use personalized communication and proactive customer support to strengthen connections.
- Innovate Regularly: Introduce new products, features, or experiences to keep them engaged.
- Monitor Feedback: Actively seek and act on feedback to address concerns and improve the customer experience.

By addressing these challenges proactively, brands can build long-term loyalty and retain their high-spending customers.

Targeted Marketing Strategy for Frequent Buyers

Frequent buyers are highly valuable customers who make regular purchases and exhibit consistent engagement. To maximize their loyalty and spending, a targeted marketing strategy should focus on personalization, rewards, and fostering a sense of exclusivity. Here's a detailed strategy:

1. Personalized Recommendations

- Behavior Insight: Frequent buyers are likely to respond well to tailored product suggestions based on their purchase history and preferences.
- Action:
 - Use AI-driven recommendation engines to suggest complementary or new products.
 - Highlight "frequently bought together" items or bundles.
 - Send personalized emails or app notifications with curated product lists.

2. Exclusive Loyalty Programs

- Behavior Insight: Frequent buyers value recognition and rewards for their loyalty.
- Action:
 - Create a tiered loyalty program where frequent buyers can unlock higher rewards (e.g., discounts, free shipping, or early access to sales).
 - Offer points for every purchase, which can be redeemed for future discounts or exclusive products.
 - Provide "surprise and delight" rewards, such as bonus points or free gifts for milestones (e.g., 10th purchase).

3. Early Access and VIP Treatment

- Behavior Insight: Frequent buyers appreciate exclusivity and being treated as VIPs.
- Action:
 - Offer early access to new product launches, limited-edition items, or seasonal sales.
 - Create a "Frequent Buyer Club" with perks like priority customer support, invitations to special events, or sneak peeks of upcoming collections.

4. Subscription or Membership Options

- Behavior Insight: Frequent buyers are likely to benefit from convenience and cost savings.
 - Action:
 - Introduce subscription services for products they purchase regularly (e.g., monthly deliveries or replenishment plans).
 - Offer membership programs with benefits like free shipping, exclusive discounts, or access to premium content.
-

Example Campaign:

"Frequent Buyer Appreciation Month"

- Offer double loyalty points for all purchases during the month.
- Provide exclusive early access to a new product line.
- Send personalized thank-you emails with a special discount code.

By implementing these strategies, you can deepen relationships with frequent buyers, increase their lifetime value, and foster long-term loyalty.

Here are some personalized message ideas tailored to low-engagement customers to encourage their activity and re-engage them with the brand:

1. Welcome Back Message

- Purpose: Reconnect with inactive customers and remind them of the brand's value.
- Message:
 - "We've missed you! It's been a while since your last visit. Here's a special 20% off just for you to rediscover your favorites. Use code WELCOME20 at checkout!"

2. Exclusive Offer

- Purpose: Provide a compelling reason to make a purchase.
- Message:
 - "We've got something special for you! Enjoy an exclusive $10 off your next purchase. Don't wait—this offer is only valid for the next 48 hours!"

3. Personalized Product Recommendations

- Purpose: Highlight products based on their past purchases or browsing history.
- Message:
 - "Hi [Name], we thought you'd love these! Based on your previous purchases, here are some recommendations just for you. Plus, enjoy free shipping on your next order!"

4. Abandoned Cart Reminder

- Purpose: Encourage customers to complete their purchase.
- Message:
 - "Your favorites are waiting! Don't miss out on the items in your cart. Complete your purchase today and get 10% off with code CART10."

5. Loyalty Program Invitation

- Purpose: Incentivize engagement through rewards.
- Message:
 - "Join our loyalty program and start earning rewards! Get points for every purchase, and redeem them for discounts, free products, and more. Sign up today and get 50

These personalized messages can help re-engage low-engagement customers by making them feel valued, offering incentives, and providing reasons to interact with the brand.

To encourage repeat purchases from new customers, promotions should focus on building trust, creating value, and fostering loyalty. Here are the types of promotions that are most effective:

1. Welcome Discounts

- Why It Works: A welcome discount makes new customers feel valued and encourages them to make their first purchase.
- Example: "Welcome to [Brand]! Enjoy 15% off your first purchase with code WELCOME15."

2. First-Purchase Rewards

- Why It Works: Offering a reward for the first purchase incentivizes customers to return and redeem their reward.
- Example: "Thank you for your first order! Here's a $10 coupon for your next purchase. Valid for 30 days."

3. Free Shipping on First Order

- Why It Works: Free shipping reduces the perceived risk of trying a new brand and encourages customers to complete their first purchase.
- Example: "Enjoy free shipping on your first order—no minimum required!"

4. Bundle Discounts

- Why It Works: Bundling products encourages customers to explore more of your offerings and increases the average order value.
- Example: "Buy 2, get 1 free on your first purchase! Discover more and save."

5. Loyalty Program Enrollment

- Why It Works: Signing up new customers for a loyalty program encourages repeat purchases by offering ongoing rewards.
- Example: "Join our loyalty program today and earn 100 bonus points with your first purchase!"

Key Considerations:

- Timing: Follow up with promotions shortly after the first purchase to maintain momentum.
- Exclusivity: Make new customers feel special by offering promotions tailored specifically to them.
- Ease of Use: Ensure promotions are easy to redeem, with clear instructions and minimal restrictions.

By implementing these promotions, you can create a positive first impression, build trust, and encourage new customers to become loyal repeat buyers.

Here are specific recommendations for each customer segment to enhance engagement and drive loyalty:

1. High Spenders

- Recommendation: Offer exclusive loyalty rewards and VIP perks.
 - Create a VIP program with benefits such as early access to new products, free shipping, or invitations to exclusive events.
 - Example: "As one of our top customers, you're invited to our VIP program! Enjoy early access to our new collection and free shipping on all orders."

2. Frequent Buyers

- Recommendation: Introduce a tiered loyalty program to reward repeat purchases.
 - Provide points for every purchase, with higher rewards for reaching milestones (e.g., free products, discounts, or bonus points).
 - Example: "Earn double points this month on every purchase! Redeem your points for exclusive discounts and rewards."

3. Low-Engagement Customers

- Recommendation: Send personalized re-engagement offers.
 - Use targeted campaigns with discounts or incentives to encourage activity.
 - Example: "We've missed you! Here's 20% off your next purchase to welcome you back. Use code WELCOME20 at checkout."

4. Occasional Buyers

- Recommendation: Offer time-sensitive discounts to encourage more frequent purchases.
 - Create urgency with limited-time offers or flash sales.
 - Example: "For the next 48 hours only, enjoy 15% off your favorite items! Don't miss out—shop now."

5. New Customers

- Recommendation: Provide a welcome discount to encourage a first purchase.
 - Offer a special discount or free shipping for their first order.
 - Example: "Welcome to [Brand]! Enjoy 15% off your first purchase with code NEW15. We're excited to have you!"

By tailoring these recommendations to each segment, you can effectively engage customers, build loyalty, and drive revenue.